

DISCIPLINE FastFacts

from Academic Analytics

2.8%

of all articles published in the discipline

In the last four years of publishing data in the Academic Analytics database, of the hundreds of journal titles in which Public Health scholars publish, PLoS ONE is the journal title where scholars publish the most.

Collaborative research among faculty in Public Health accounts for 21.7% of all co-authored Public Health journal publications.

21.7%

150
Disciplines

Public Health scholars conduct extensive collaborative research with faculty in over 150 separate disciplines.

In all, collaborative research inside and outside the discipline accounts for 96% of the Public Health journal articles captured in the Academic Analytics database (2015-2018 inclusive).

96%

Collaborations with other disciplines most often involves researchers in Epidemiology where they account for 13.5% of all co-authored journal publications. The next frequent collaborative field, Biostatistics, accounts for 6.5% of the total co-authored journal publications for Public Health. Do you know who are the top potential collaborators in these fields that best complement your research and where they are located?

Since Academic Analytics uses the individual researcher as the unit of record, we can look across all faculty in a discipline to view their current rank and the years since their most advanced degree.

FULL professor

ASSOCIATE professor

ASSISTANT professor

31.2
YEARS

19.6
YEARS

11.6
YEARS

Average academic ages (years since their most advanced degree) of Public Health scholars nationally

Percent of faculty ranks within the national discipline

32.1%

29.9%

38%

How does the distribution of faculty in your department compare to the national averages, and what are the implications for planning?

Research Insight from Academic Analytics can help answer that.

Data from the Academic Analytics database indicate that

32.3%

of PUBLIC HEALTH faculty currently receive federal funding.

68.2%

27.6%

2%

The top two sources of federal funding for Public Health are the National Institutes of Health and the Department of Health and Human Services providing 68.2% and 27.6% of captured funding, respectively for the past five years. The National Science Foundation appears in third place providing 2% of captured funding for the same time period.

There are 3,892

individuals in the Academic Analytics database who are affiliated with Public Health departments.

Of the faculty population for whom we can infer gender

46.5%

MALE

53.5%

FEMALE

According to the data captured in the Academic Analytics database, 20.9% of Public Health faculty have received a national honorific award. The National Academy of Medicine provides the most honorific awards for the discipline, accounting for 7.7% of all recorded awards. Of the faculty population for whom we have been able to identify gender, the distribution of awards granted by the National Academy of Medicine is 58.5% of awards going to male scholars and 41.5% going to female scholars.